

Going out in Public

Things look very different at the moment because of coronavirus.

This might make us feel worried.

It is okay to feel a little bit worried about coronavirus. Your adults are there to help you.

There are a few new rules about going out in public. This is okay.

The main rule is that we should keep space between us and other people.

Some people might be wearing face masks.

Some places will have markings on the floor to show you where to stand.

You might be asked to use hand sanitizer.

Washing our hands is extra important.

It is extra important to listen to your adult when out in public.

Sometimes you might forget the rules, and this is okay. Your adult will remind you.

These rules keep everyone happy and safe.

If you are worried about the new rules then ask an adult. They can help you. It is okay to be worried or to have questions.

The most important thing is that you are happy.
