

Social Distancing

Things look very different at the moment because of coronavirus.

This might make us feel worried.

It is okay to feel a little bit worried about coronavirus. Your adults are there to help you.

One of the big changes we have had to make is social distancing.

Social distancing means that it is very important to keep space between you and other people.

This is to keep everyone safe and happy.

This means that things will look a bit different.

Some places will have markings on the floor to show you where to stand.

These might be lines, boxes or crosses.

If you and someone else both have your arms out straight, you should not be able to touch hands.

If you can touch hands then you are too close.

These rules keep everyone happy and safe.

If you are worried about social distancing then ask an adult. They can help you. It is okay to be worried or to have questions.

The most important thing is that you are happy.